

New City Officials Take Office Tonight

Marking the transition between the old order and the new, the City Board of Trustees will meet tonight at 7 o'clock to complete unfinished business and will at 9 o'clock relinquish their offices as city fathers to members of the new City Council created with the adoption of a charter government for Glendale.

Business of a preliminary nature will be taken up by the City Council after members have been sworn into office. As the City Council will hold six sessions each month in place of four, as under the office of the Board of Trustees, it is probable that dates for the additional meetings will be set.

Whether or not any action will be taken on the selection of a mayor tonight has not been determined though it is probable that this matter will be set over until a later date. The passing of the Board of Trustees marks the cessation of this body after having been in control of the city government fifteen years.

FOREST FIRE IS UNDER CONTROL

Sweeping over an area of nearly 100 acres, a forest fire in the hills near Saugus yesterday threatened motorists traveling along the Ridge Route and threatened to attain dangerous proportions because of a strong wind that steadily fanned the flames and made the work of fire fighters doubly difficult.

Forest fighters aided by volunteers battled with the flames all night. It was reported this morning that the fire was under control.

PARTY SPENDS FOURTH AT LAKE

Group of Congenial Families
Celebrate Independence
Day Out of Doors

A group of congenial friends who have frequent outings together, spent the Fourth at Chatsworth lake, taking with them all the paraphernalia for a good time and a fine picnic dinner and supper, including an abundance of ice cream, and also a liberal supply of fire crackers and fireworks, which were set off about 9 p. m. from the shore of the lake, which mirrored the display and enhanced its beauty.

The party, which did not get home until midnight, included Mr. and Mrs. George J. ## Use Crowbar on Man-Eating Mule

By International News Service
LONG CREEK, Ore., July 5.—Clarence Porter, young son of Allen Porter, had to be pried loose from a man-eating mule with a crowbar, when the recalcitrant animal sunk its teeth in his leg and refused to let go. Clubs, stones and knives had no effect on the mule, any more than Si's cuss words would on the famous Maud, and the iron crowbar had to be inserted between the jaws and the mouth forced open before the boy could be released. Young Porter was seriously injured, the flesh on his leg being torn away from the bone.

The animal was to be branded, and Porter was holding its head while another man tied its feet. In trying to control the mule, Porter struck it with a spur, but the animal snapped onto the spur, drew the lad closer and seized his leg in a stubborn grip.

Georgia Dry Law Works Hardship

By International News Service
DALTON, Ga., July 5.—One Los Angeles druggist is going to operate a comparatively dry store for a few months, according to Judge M. C. Tarver, who has ordered seized and held a carload of whisky consigned from Kentucky to the Los Angeles merchant. The druggist wanted the liquor for "medicinal purposes," but the railroad company made the mistake of routing the car through Georgia, where a state law operates with considerable vigor.

At the first hearing Judge Tarver ordered the whisky "put in jail" for safe keeping. The sheriff had been using his supply of iff has been using his supply of deputies guarding the seized car when this order was made, and he, at least, breathed a sigh of relief. The judge first ordered the whisky destroyed, but everybody concerned made so much noise that the order was modified. Now it is ordered that another hearing shall be held and the car held for possible confiscation. The whisky is growing better.

Mrs. H. M. Calkins, who has been connected with the Glendale Daily Press since it became a daily, and a much-valued member of the staff, left this city Sunday with her husband, bound for Shafter, near Bakersfield, where Mr. Calkins is establishing a paper. She made a large circle of friends here by whom she will be missed, and found it quite a wrench to give up the many pleasant associations here, but is looking forward with enthusiasm common to a true newspaper woman to the work of building up a paper in that new field.

EASTERN BUSINESS WOMAN TO TRY GLENDALE

FARIS MURDY WILL BRING HOME A JUNE BRIDE

Stops on Way East to Witness
Big Fight Long Enough to Become Benedict

A telegram received by Mrs. Paul Jones of 113 East Elk avenue brought her the surprising news that her son, Faris Murdy, who stopped off at Montgomery, Ala., on his way to the great Dempsey-Carpentier prize fight in New Jersey, had been pierced by Cupid's arrow and would bring home a bride when he returns July 16.

He had stopped off to renew acquaintance with Mr. and Mrs. Hines and family, of Montgomery, with whom he had made his home when living in that city, and with whom he has always corresponded. Since he last saw them, the little schoolgirl of his remembrance, Virginia Hines, has blossomed into a young lady. Faris has always been her hero and the romance reached a swift climax when he appeared on the scene. He telegraphed that they would spend a couple of weeks with his brother in Boston, before coming home.

As the champion boxer of the U. S. S. Mississippi and favorite of his shipmates, in company with the bandmaster of the ship he was sent to New Jersey by his comrades to represent the ship and the Pacific fleet at the great contest and report the details of the fight to the jacksies, to whom this sporting event was the big thing of the year. The two boys were to be guests of Dempsey at his training camp, and Faris was hoping to have a practice sparring bout with the great pugilist.

MISS ABBIE TERRY DIES SUDDENLY

Friends of Miss Abbie C. Terry, who for several years was at the head of the department of dramatic art in Glendale Union high school, were shocked and grieved when news of her sudden death was circulated. It occurred at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Terry, of Eagle Rock. They had gone to La Jolla with a party of friends to spend the weekend, Miss Terry, her brother-in-law and nephew remaining at home. Though a little tired from her work in connection with the community play given in Eagle Rock, which she had helped to stage, she seemed ordinarily well and unusually cheerful. Friends were invited to dine with her and after the dinner, she drove them home in her car. She went to bed apparently in the best of health and spirits, with the injunction on the part of her nephew and brother-in-law not to feel obliged to get up to get their breakfast, as they would get it themselves. When nothing had been heard from her at 10 o'clock in the morning, the nephew called her.

Receiving no answer, he entered the room and found her dead, and it was evident that she had expired several hours before. Whether caused by apoplexy or heart trouble, it was impossible to determine. It was a terrible shock to her family, whose members, fortunately, could all be reached, a sister in San Diego, one in Berkeley, and the parents in La Jolla. Miss Terry gave up her work here a year ago last June, because she felt the need of a long rest.

Funeral services were held this morning at the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn memorial park, with Rev. Isaac of the Congregational church of Eagle Rock, officiating.

Step on Your Gas and Watch Yourself Go

By International News Service
COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—"With 110,000,000 self-starters in our nation, there is nothing to prevent the most wonderful prosperity in the history of the world, if they realize all that is necessary is to apply the self-starting principle to social and economic problems," declared Dr. Edward Amherst Ott, industrial expert, lecturing before a local audience.

"Think good times. Talk good times. Start buying. Give work to somebody, if it's only for a day. Come on, let's go."

Long-Haired Ghurka Priest Is Disgraced

By International News Service
VANCOUVER, B. C., July 5.—Narin Singh is disgraced. No longer can he be a Ghurka priest. For his sword has been taken away and with it, his respectability and power.

Ushered into court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, Narin disclosed a sword about 14 inches long with a razor-edge blade, shaped like a sabre. The court demanded that he turn over the weapon. Narin resisted.

He groveled in the court room dust; he would be disgraced forever, and could no longer be a Ghurka priest; should his bones or ashes ever reach the Ganges river they would turn its color to a blood-red, he argued. But in vain.

The court now possesses the sword.

Narin Singh, who is a very religious Hindu, explained that he was priest of a temple that required its priests to wear long hair and carry a short sword.

AUTOS COLLIDE, BUT NOT MUCH DAMAGE

C. H. Montgomery, 919 East Acacia avenue, while driving his automobile yesterday at the intersection of Kennedy road and Valley View road, collided with a machine driven by J. B. Franklin. ## FRIEND RICHARDSON CONTINUES TO PILE UP WEALTH OF STATE

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—Interest on state deposits last month reached the big figure of $45,540.79, and exceeded all previous records, according to the report of State Treasurer Friend W. Richardson. Interest collections are twice as much on the same average balance as they were previous to his administration and the increased earnings for the state exceed two hundred thousand dollars a year. Richardson has not only exceeded his own record but those of all his predecessors.

The state has on deposit in banks subject to call at any time and secured by gilt-edged bonds, more than $14,000,000. The interest rate when Richardson took office averaged slightly more than 2 per cent, while now the rate runs from 3 1/2 to 4 1/4 per cent, and most of the money brings in 4 per cent. By careful attention to business and observing the bidding provision of law, the rate has been steadily increased, with a resulting increase of income for the state.

SAN DIEGO WINS BASEBALL GAME

Scoring a victory in the "prep" ranks yesterday that leaves no doubt as to the stellar caliber of scholastic sports in California, the San Diego high school baseball team walked off with the first interscholastic baseball championship of the United States by defeating West Tech high school of Cleveland, O., yesterday, in the second and winning game out of a two out of three series.

Yesterday's game, ending with a 7 to 6 score, proved vastly more interesting than the first fracas, when San Diego white-washed West Tech to the tune of 10 to 0.

LONDON, July 5.—Premier Smuts of South Africa, who has undertaken an important political mission in Ireland, slipped into Dublin unnoticed this morning, said a Dublin dispatch to the Central News.

Paddock Continues His Clock-Work Victories

Scores of Glendale people who are followers of sport thronged to Paddock Field in Pasadena, yesterday to witness the Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships. For the greater part, the meet was devoid of big thrills that endangered existing records and many entries failed to come through according to reputation, but nevertheless the field was sufficiently well balanced to make every event a real struggle for points.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club, having an edge with the number of competitors entered in each event, forged ahead in the early part of the meet with Paddock's clock-work victories, and maintained the lead to the end, besting the New York Athletic Club by 4 points. The various clubs scored as follows:

Los Angeles Athletic Club, 34.
New York Athletic Club, 30.

Olympic Club, 23.
Chicago Athletic Club, 17.
Illinois Athletic Club, 17.
Boston Athletic Club, 16.
Multnomah Athletic Club, 13.
Notre Dame, 10.
Loughlin Lyceum, 8.
Harvard, 5.
Morningside Athletic Club, 5.
Thompson Steel Athletic Club, 5.
92nd Street Y. M. H. A., New York, 5.
Unattached, 5.
Phoenix Indian School, 3.
University of Missouri, 2.
Meadowbrook Athletic Club, 2.
Melrose Athletic Club, 2.
Baylor University, 1.
Kansas City Athletic Club, 1.
Yale University, 1.
New York Y. M. H. A., 1.

The dark horses of Southern California who upset predictions and wrested places from eastern competitors, were Blenkiron, who finished second to Paddock in the century, and Houser, who beat out the oldtimers in the 16-pound shotput.

LA HALLA TEMPLE WINS BIG PRIZE

Quite a delegation from the Glendale K. of P. Lodge and La Halla Temple, Pythian Sisters, attended the K. of P. Carnival held at Van Nuys July 1, 2, and 3. The carnival was put on for the purpose of raising funds for the Castle Hall at Van Nuys and a large number of prizes were offered ranging from a Ford touring car to articles valued at $1. La Halla Temple, this city, was the fortunate winner of a bedroom set valued at $125, and is now trying to decide whether to sell it at private sale for the benefit of the Temple or to raffle it off.

DAILY VACATIONS BIBLE SCHOOL

Opens This Morning in Seven
Glendale Churches With Large Attendance

The Daily Vacation Bible School opened this morning with an attendance close to 200, which was very good for the first day. The largest number was seen at the First Presbyterian church, where juniors, primaries and beginners were enrolled to the number of 113.

At the First M. E. only juniors were taken and 14 were present.

Twelve small children were in attendance at the First Baptist.

There were 29 in attendance at the West Glendale M. E.; 30 at the Central Avenue M. E.; and 27 at the Tropic Presbyterian. Reports from the Congregational and Casa Verdugo M. E. churches were not available.

When craft work and basketry are introduced, which will be in a day or two, the attendance will be much larger.

CHILD IS KILLED IN AUTO COLLISION SATURDAY

A tragedy which has bereft Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Tassano formerly of 623 East Chestnut street this city of their only daughter, occurred on Grand View about noon Saturday. Motor-ing from the Tassano ranch at San Fernando and Grand View avenue accompanied by her little five-year-old daughter Benita, and two workmen she was taking home to dinner, Mrs. Tassano encountered a machine that, she says was weaving from one side of the road to the other as though the driver were intoxicated. In a vain effort to escape she ran her car to the right side of the road but it was struck nevertheless in a head-on collision. Little Benita was thrown forward, her temple striking a bolt in the windshield and was instantly killed. The mother was badly bruised but no bones were broken and the car was wrecked, the two workmen in the rear seat escaping injury.

Mrs. Tassano declares the auto which struck her was apparently undamaged and that its driver put on all speed and left the scene without offering assistance. The Burbank city marshal has since told her he thought he could identify the driver as a Bakerfield man.

This is the second auto accident in which members of the Tassano family have suffered. Mr. Tassano was badly injured a few months ago when the auto in which he was riding was struck by a Burbank P. E. car.

W. W. COOKMAN HAS WORLD CHAMPION HURDLER AS HIS HOUSE GUEST

Earl Thomson of Dartmouth College, premiere hurdler of the world, is spending the balance of the week as the guest of W. W. Cookman and family of 215 South Pacific avenue. As the representative of the Boston Athletic Club he was winner in the National High Hurdle at Tournament Park yesterday and his victory was not unexpected as he is the holder of the world's record in high hurdle events with a credit of 14 2/5 seconds. He is also the winner of Olympic events. Within the past two years he has never been defeated and his record seems the more surprising because he is so big, his weight being 192 pounds and his height 6 feet 2 1/2 inches. He and Prof. Alfred Cookman are great friends and were on the same team representing the University of Southern California in 1915. He was best man at Mr. Cookman's wedding, and is completing his education at Dartmouth.

THE "WETS" ARE BUSY

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Wet" leaders today attributed to the excessively hot weather the poor showing made by the anti-prohibition parade on the Fourth. The "old guard" alone turned out. It is estimated that there were between 15,000 and 16,000 persons in line, including about 2500 women. Mayor Hylan reviewed the parade.

GEO. E. CRYER, NEW MAYOR OF CITY OF LOS ANGELES, IN OFFICE NOW

Moved with tears at the moment of his retirement from the office of mayor of Los Angeles, Meredith R. Snyder yesterday formally turned over the reins of the city government to George E. Cryer, who, shaking ex-Mayor Snyder's hand, promised to give Los Angeles a straight-forward, business-like administration.

At noon yesterday, the time of exchange in the city hall, Mayor Snyder in turning over the key to Mayor-elect Cryer, said:

"Mayor Cryer, the hour has arrived when it is my duty to transfer the key of Los Angeles to you. In doing so I wish you a successful administration and the cooperation of the people of Los Angeles."

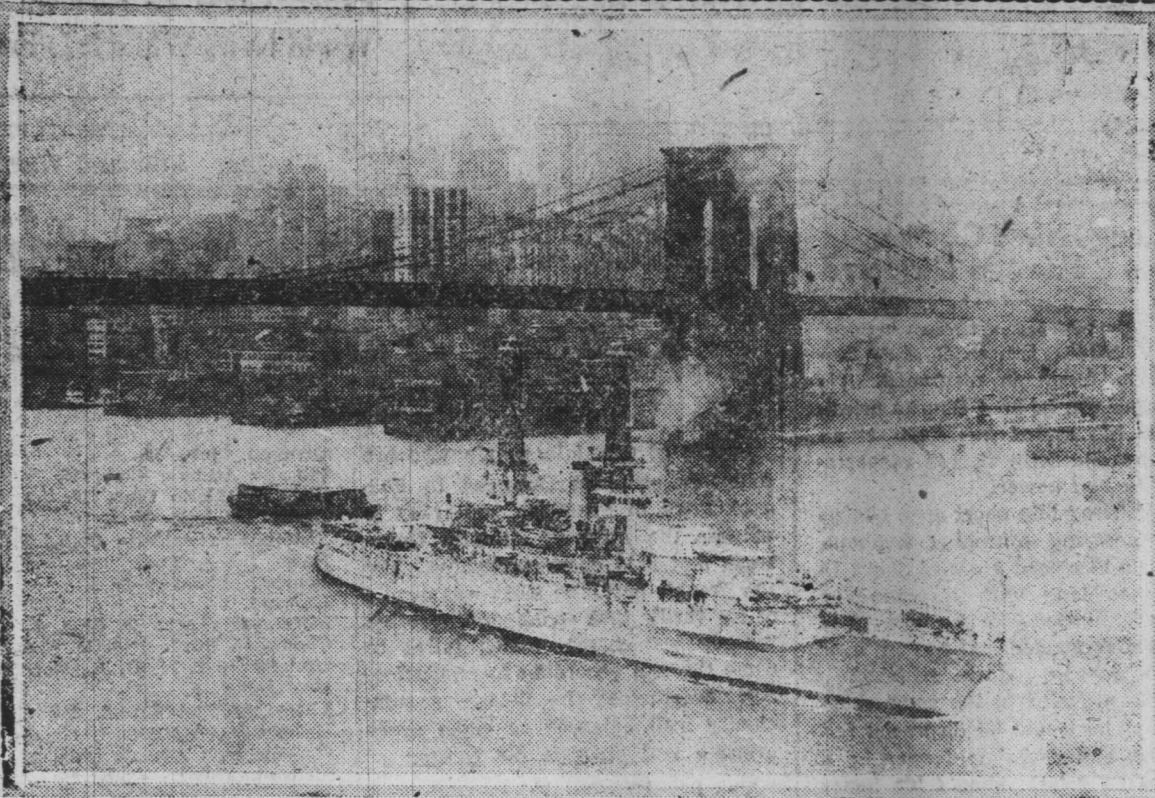

Accepting the key, Mayor Cryer said in part:

"Mayor Snyder and friends: I have been referred to as a humble young man. I never felt so humble as right now. I wish to thank you for your kind words and I wish you every success.

"We part, I hope, the best of friends. I have tried to treat you kindly and I have only the best and kindest feeling toward you. My one thought is to give the city a clean and honest administration. That is my highest ambition. For those who helped me I have the deepest gratitude. I realize the responsibilities placed on my shoulders and I shall do my best to give the city a clean administration."

LIFE ABOARD A BATTLESHIP OF THE PACIFIC FLEET IS MADE ATTRACTIVE TO THE CREWS

U.S.S. Idaho.

© N.Y. SHIPBUILDING CORP.

Cleanliness and Orderliness Prevail, but Fun and All Comforts of Home Are Provided by Uncle Sam for Men Who Man His Dreadnought Guardians of Coasts

By CHARLES E. HUGHES, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
U. S. S. NEW MEXICO, FLAGSHIP PACIFIC FLEET, LOS ANGELES HARBOR, July 5.—From the time all hands are called at 5:30 a. m. until 9:00 p. m., when the crew is supposed to "call it a day" and crawl into hammocks, there is always something happening on the New Mexico, or any other ship of the navy in the way of routine.

There is a daily cleaning-up schedule, which is elaborated into a general "house cleaning" on Fridays. On that day there isn't a piece of metal the size of a dime that isn't gone over with soap and water or scoured until it shines like new.

Each day there are gun drills, emergency drills and plenty of other routine training that whets the appetites of the men. But in the navy it is recognized that "all work and no play" is a bad rule. So there are lots of opportunities for recreation.

The New Mexico's complement of 1680 men and 80 officers all share in the enjoyment of the ubiquitous "movies." These are presented on the upper deck in the open air on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

One of the nights the correspondent was aboard a seven-reel offering which had been featured in the country's leading theaters was presented. On another night a notable production was augmented by a conchy reel. The officers of the superdreadnought occupied seats in the front rows of the audience chamber. Behind them sat the men of the crew on rough benches.

On either side of the New Mexico were other superdreadnoughts anchored in the night. The lights on one were ablaze from bow to stern. A dance was being held by the crew to pay for entertainments given them by people ashore during the spring months.

The expenses of the "movies," athletic equipment, dances and general amusement of the New Mexico's crew is provided principally through the ship's canteen and similar concessions.

Inter-Fleet Contests

The canteen is operated under the direction of the ship's welfare officer. A paymaster is in charge and an inventory of stock and cash is taken each evening. Tobacco, canned goods, cakes, candies, toilet accessories, athletic goods, etc., are sold for cash. The canteen is liberally patronized, and the profit on the New Mexico is reported to be as high as $400 a week. The margin of profit is not allowed to canteen photographer, 15 per cent; barber, 35 per cent; laundry, 22 per cent; presser, 35 per cent; cobbler, 35 per cent.

The athletics in which the crew participate include sailing races, baseball, football, boxing, wrestling and swimming. In most of these sports there are competitions between the various units of the fleet.

The participation in the athletic events is entirely voluntary, but most of the crew engages in some of the sports at one time or another during the year. There is keen competition between the various ships, for the exceed 15 per cent and usually runs about 10 per cent.

In addition to the profits from the canteen the welfare fund is swelled by receipts from the ship's photographer, cobbler, barber shop, laundry and tailoring establishment. The following profits from the various shops go to the welfare fund: Tailor, 35 per cent; cobbler, 35 per cent; barber, 35 per cent; laundry, 22 per cent; presser, 35 per cent; cobbler, 35 per cent.

Order of the Smile

In addition to providing funds for the entertainment of the crew, the welfare fund is used to provide books and periodicals for the reading room. Also to subscribe to worthy charitable organizations.

The reading room is one of the most popular spots in the superdreadnought. Absolute quiet is the rule. Those who violate this rule are punished by being denied admittance for several days.

In a recent address at Annapolis to the members of the graduating class of the Naval Academy, Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby told the 260 recipients of diplomas: "Go to your men simply and naturally, a man among men. Give the best that is in you and expect good work in return. There is a smile in the navy and in the marine corps that men reserve for those that they respect and like. It is better than any decoration. Try to win it."

On the New Mexico there are smiles from the men for the officers, indicating that those in command have won the respect and confidence of the crew. On every side there appeared to be splendid team work. Commands are given in a quiet tone and every member of the crew appeared to take a delight in promptly doing anything he was requested to perform.

The New Mexico's crew is a happy, well-cared-for, jolly lot of men, and they appear to take pride in letting the world know it.

THEATERS

Glendale Theatre

Three of the foremost animal trainers in America were instrumental in making "The Man Tamer," the Universal circus feature starring Gladys Walton. This feature is coming to the Glendale theatre today, and shows the young star in a cage full of jungle beasts, putting them through a routine of tricks that would do credit to a disciple of Hagenback.

Credit for the animal scenes must be given to A. C. Stecker, superintendent of the Universal City zoo, who supplied a dozen well-trained lions, and was on hand just outside the camera range to watch the beasts.

Playing the girl's father, and assisting her in the handling of the animals was Rex de Rosselli, for years the most famous trainer in America.

In the role of assistant to the lion trainer appears C. B. Murphy, who, under the title of Carlos Bernardo, has thrilled vaudeville and circus audiences for years with a dangerous leopard act.

Palace Grand

An American college girl in an American college story. That's what the manager of the Palace Grand theatre will offer to his patrons today in "The Snob," a tale of campus life and football by William J. Neidig.

A better choice of star for such a play could hardly have been made. Miss Hawley is a true epitome of the real American girl. Born in Scranton, Pa., and educated in Seattle (Wash.), high school, she has lived the life of the typical American young woman. From high school she went to the University of Washington, and after a period there, taught music in Bremerton (Wash.), schools.

In "The Snob," Miss Hawley is supported by an excellent cast including Walter Hiers, Sylvia Ashton, Edwin Stevens, Julia Faye, Richard Wayne and William Lawrence.

IMPERFECT COINS THIS MAN'S HOBBY

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, July 5.—The collecting of "bad money" coins which have been imperfectly minted is the peculiar hobby of Douglas N. Starr, sergeant of the guard at the War Department. Starr's collection is thought to be the only one of its kind in the world.

The National Museum has reached one collection of 200 imperfect coins gathered together by Sergeant Starr, and now he has completed a small private collection, containing twenty-three imperfect coins, ranging from a silver half dollar, minted in 1807, to dimes and pennies of 1920.

Ray Baker, director of the mint, has asked Starr to sell this collection to the Treasury Department, either for exhibition or for the coins to be cancelled as worthless. Starr has refused to comply with this request, and Mr. Baker will ask the passage of a law to compel the return to the Government of imperfect coins.

The old half dollar, two dimes with the dates 1875 and 1890, six Buffalo nickels, four of the new dimes, one Indiana penny and nine Lincoln pennies comprise Starr's latest collection.

A portion of the disk is unstamped on each of these coins, this having occurred when the die which stamped the coins was not properly centered. A portion of the coin was stamped twice in two cases. On one of the Lincoln pennies a part of the die had struck over an already imperfect coin, leaving two separate impressions, neither of which was properly centered.

In Russia, under the old regime, many of the theatres did not open until midnight.

Skeletons and cremated ashes of human beings buried about 2000 B. C. have been found in England.

Maximum of Efficiency Maintained in Operation

By CHARLES E. HUGHES, International News Service Staff Correspondent
U. S. S. NEW MEXICO, FLAGSHIP PACIFIC FLEET, LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Cal., July 5.—In portions of the nation far removed from the seaboard, especially in the interior of the country, the question is often raised: "Why are so many millions of dollars necessary in constructing a modern battleship?"

To one who has had the opportunity of going over every foot of a great superdreadnought like this New Mexico the answer is simple.

The reason our great sea fighting units cost so much is because they are the last words in naval perfection at the time they are built. And to be such they had to be equipped with the best, as well as the most efficient and durable, mechanisms. This has to be kept up to the highest possible standard and constantly renewed.

The correspondent was taken into a magazine of powder used to supply the energy of the fourteen-inch rifles, a little over fifty-eight feet long and of which the New Mexico carries twelve, located in four turrets—two forward and two aft.

On one of the walls of steel was a glass jar partly filled with powder, broken up into small sticks and appearing something like broken sticks of hoarhound candy. Inside the cap of the jar was a piece of chemically-treated paper. If it turned a certain color it showed the powder was deteriorating in strength.

The same method is used in various forms throughout the ship. Everywhere there is a check to see if anything is happening daily to possibly render the superdreadnought inefficient.

Efficiency is Primary.

When even the smallest defect is found it is immediately remedied. At the same time there is a continual comparison being made of the performance of the ship's mechanical odds and ends, so that as new war vessels are laid down they can be rendered more efficient than craft of the type of only a year or two previous.

If there can be said to be one objective in the navy regarded more important than anything else it undoubtedly is efficiency with saving of time and effort. One has only to watch the loading of the three fourteen-inch guns in one of the turrets to ascertain this. From the depths of the New Mexico a charge of 460 pounds of powder, contained in four silken bags is hoisted by electric elevators to the turret. Likewise a shell weighing 1,400 pounds and containing a charge of thirty-three pounds of dynamite, a deadly explosive, is moved up by another electric elevator. The gun is loaded and its missile sent spinning away twelve and a half miles with a velocity of 2,800 feet a second, all within a few seconds.

While the twelve fourteen-inch guns are being fired fourteen other guns of five-inch calibre can be utilized for shorter range work, or held in reserve until they can become effective. If there was an engagement in which aircraft were attacking, four three-inch anti-aircraft guns would bark. And if the occasion arose for their use, two submerged torpedo tubes would be available with their missiles of destruction.

The Lesson of Preparedness

Admiral Rodman, in an interview with the correspondent, stated recently before leaving the Pacific fleet that a good navy is good insurance. Other officers hold the same view. They feel that preparedness is a protection against war, as well as a means of defense in case of war.

Judging from the attitude of the New Mexico's officers, the United States is regarded in the navy as being friendly to every nation on earth.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

INSANE MAN JUMPS FROM HIS COFFIN

(By International News Service) Warsaw, July 5.—Grand Guignol plays are outdone by a drama enacted at Vilna a few days ago.

An inmate of the local asylum died, and the coffin body was taken into the chapel. Another inmate, who had seen the body of his comrade carried away, stole into the chapel, took the body from the coffin and put it in the cupboard used to keep the church furniture. This done, he lay down in the coffin, covered himself with a shroud and fell asleep.

A few hours later a priest arrived and conducted a requiem service. When it was finished bearers lifted the coffin to take it away for the burial. The motion woke the madman, who jumped out, struck one of the bearers a blow on the head and ran away. The bearer collapsed and died from fright, while the priest and the others fled panic-stricken.

Their cries brought a crowd to the chapel entrance. Eventually some of the bravest ventured inside to ascertain what had happened. They found an empty coffin and a dead man on the floor, and naturally put the corpse into the coffin. They then began to search for the shroud, which the madman had taken away with him. One of the searchers opened the cupboard in the hope of finding something fit to cover the body. Directly he did so the hidden dead man fell on him head first and knocked him down.

The live man fainted from fright, and panic again filled the chapel, the crowd rushing out and scattering through the city. It was only after several hours' work by the police that the matter was cleared up and popular excitement subsided.

It was in the year 1817 that iron pavements were first laid in London.

VIRGINIA LEE FEARS HER FIANCES HERE

NEW YORK, July 5.—Who are the eleven men, New York is asking, whose ardent suits have won Miss Virginia Lee's "yes" and who expect, on her return from abroad to become her husband?

Undulant, slender-bowed Miss Lee, whom Howard Chandler Christy enthused over as "the ideal Christy girl," has confessed to friends in Paris that she is afraid to return to New York "because I've got eleven fiancés and they'll all be waiting at the pier."

Among her intimates in New York the names of several men who may be on the list have been mentioned. Three of these were in eager attendance when Miss Lee appeared as a show girl in "The Greenwich Village Follies." But none of her friends can list the entire eleven. And perhaps their names will remain a mystery until the vessel docks.

Recently her charms and ability in the ballet of the "League of Nations" in London won for Miss Lee the enthusiasm of the Maharaja of Kapurthala, a man of tremendous wealth.

Miss Lee was born in Mexico City, Missouri, and educated in New Orleans. She is twenty-one years old. It was recently reported from London that a youth named Guinness, grandson of the originator of Guinness' Stout and a relative of Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, of New York, became so enamored of Miss Lee that his mother appeared at the theatre in which she was appearing and entered vigorous protests with the manager. The young man's attentions ceased forthwith.

PERSECUTIONS IN HUNGARY CHARGED

(Special Correspondence to International News Service.)

BUDAPEST, July 5.—That scores of Hungarian workers arrested merely on suspicion have been held without trial for over a year in internment camps near this city; that many have been wilfully shot during transportation from prison to camp, under pretense that they were attempting to escape, and that the rape of women and even young girls has been so general in the internment camps that practically the whole population is infected with disease, are among the accusations made to the Hungarian Parliament and to friends in the lobby by Zakany, a Christian nationalist deputy, who has been investigating the internment camps. The accusations have created the greater sensation because Zakany was formerly a leader in the "Awakening Hungarians," the most anti-Socialist and anti-Semitic body in this country. In spite of the revelations, the newly-appointed Minister for the Interior, Mr. Rada, from whom a more liberal policy was promised and expected, is making no move to dissolve the camps.

During the last year and a half it has been the policy of the Hungarian Government to intern anyone suspected of radicalism, on the evidence of another citizen. That months have often elapsed before the victim was brought to trial and that often the trial produced no evidence is substantiated by the International News Service correspondent, who recently made a personal investigation of many cases. In one case a mechanic, the father of a small family, and the sole support of an aged mother, was arrested, first a year ago, on evidence tendered by the janitor of the building in which he lived, was released on ground of insufficient charges, after having been held for two weeks under vile conditions; was rearrested a few weeks later on the same charges, tendered by the same man, and this time held for three months; was again released, and was finally rearrested, held for seven months and then brought to trial and acquitted.

Persecution of Jews.

All Jews who have entered Hungary since 1914 are subject to deportation, and a persistent effort is being made to round them all up. Since hundreds of them have no passports, owing to the fact that they fled to Hungary during the war from occupied territories, which have since changed hands and passed to other nations, they will not be received in the countries from which they came, and are interned in the same camps with the Communist suspects. Among those who have fallen victim to the Deportation laws are many who are engaged in productive work and even some who fought in the Hungarian army during the war. Until very recently no relief agency, including the Joint Distribution Committee, which is organized largely to care for just such sufferers, has been permitted to visit the internment camps. Since Rada's incumbency as Minister of the Interior Baron Reading, the representative in Hungary of the International Red Cross, was granted a permit to visit the camps, but so carefully was his visit engineered and conducted—he made it in company with Count Bethlen, the Prime Minister, and Mr. Rada—that he subsequently published a report in which he expressed himself as satisfied with conditions.

There are no Social Democrats in the Hungarian Parliament at present, and only one Jew; but the Peasants' Party is pressing for a reformation of the conditions.

NOVEL FOURTH OF JULY EVENING

A decidedly original little Fourth of July evening was devised by Chas. Beamon and Virginia Woodard for the entertainment of parents and friends at the Beamon home, on North Maryland avenue, last night. For it, they prepared elaborate programs decorated with flags and tiny firecrackers, the numbers on the program being the pieces fired off, beginning with (1) Five torpedoes; (2) Box of Sparklers, etc.

It proved a highly diverting and appropriate party in which the neighborhood joined.

MRS. STEFFY WILL REMAIN IN GLENDALE

Mrs. Clara Steffy is the best example Glendale has seen in a long time of perennial youth. She and her son, Fred Gilbert, arrived last Friday from Victor, Ia., by auto, the trip having consumed about two weeks and being the second of its kind that Mrs. Steffy has experienced in the last ten months. She is 75 years young and said she enjoyed every minute of the journey except traversing the flood-swept districts where the awful destruction of life and property was but too evident.

She and her son are now the guests of her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Bowling, a newcomer who has located on South Jackson street. When Mrs. Steffy was here before she toured pretty thoroughly all the suburbs of Los Angeles and made up her mind definitely that she liked Glendale the best. She now expects to make her home here.

REVIEW PLANS FOR PROPOSED BUILDING

Additional business that may be presented to the chamber at this time will also be disposed of.

CONGRESS ASKED FOR BOOZE PATROL

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, July 5.—Run running is now recognized as an enforcement problem, to be met with larger forces of "dry" agents on the borders and along the coasts.

Thousands of gateways along the Canadian and Mexican borders and on the coasts, through which millions of gallons of booze pass regularly, must be protected by a broader enforcement plan, if the Volstead law is to be enforced with reasonable success, prohibition officials declared recently.

Government officials will ask Congress to strengthen the customs service to check activity by whisky smugglers. They also will seek authority to enlarge the force of dry agents on the borders.

Since customs officers were withdrawn from border duty, where they served for a time, little resistance has been offered to smugglers. The notorious fact that millions in illicit profits are being made by traffic in whisky, by importers and bootleggers is well known to the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The present strength of the revenue and dry law personnel only allows the detail of a small number of men for border duty. This arrangement cannot be changed until Congress grants more funds. The attitude of Congress against greater appropriations is well known. There is much doubt Congress will alter its view, despite the pressure brought by prohibition leaders.

PRICES REMAIN AT PEAK IN FRANCE

Is Only Nation Unaffected by Post War Reversion to Pre-War Wage Status

(By International News Service)

PARIS, July 5.—High cost of labor is one of the principal factors which is keeping the cost of living in France at almost the maximum point attained after the war, while other countries are reporting perceptible decreases.

In not a single important industry in France has there been any wage reduction since the war, nor is there likely to be for at least another six months. On the contrary, salaries are still on the increase in some industries, with consequent increases in the cost of manufactured commodities.

Several attempts have been made by big manufacturers, notably in the automobile industry, to negotiate wage decreases with their employees or the lines of those recently agreed to in the United States and in Belgium. In each instance the labor leaders have refused to enter into any negotiations and have insisted on a revision of the wage scale upward, if any revision at all is made.

Labor holds the situation well in hand at present, because labor is in big demand and labor leaders know it. While England is confronted with a grave problem of unemployment, French workers have had no difficulty at all getting jobs since the war, and for that reason they are not at all disposed to accept any salary cuts, whatever the arguments advanced by the employers.

In Belgium a serious effort is being made to bring down wages as a first step in lower cost of living, and the Government has achieved some results. Each month an "index" list, reporting variations in prices of the chief elements entering into the cost of living, is published, and manufacturers and workmen are invited to discuss wages on the basis of these lists. The laborers have consented to some reductions, though they have established as a principle that in no case shall their wages drop below those earned in 1914 and that in every case they must earn more in an eight-hour day than they earned in a ten-hour day in 1914.

The high cost of labor in France was made its effect felt largely in the building industries. Many new manufacturing plants have been set up since the war, but the erection of dwellings and business houses has been carried out on a very limited scale.

HISTORIC ROAD WILL BE REBUILT

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—The historic Georgetown-Leesburg pike, over which George Washington and Lafayette used to canter on their early-morning horseback rides, is about to be rebuilt. Though this thoroughfare was once the pride of Washingtonians and Virginians, it has been allowed to sink into disrepair and today is impassable to motor vehicles during the greater part of the year.

For months business men in Washington and farmers living between the capital and Leesburg have been advocating restoration of the pike both from a feeling of patriotic pride in its historical associations and because they feel the need of a modern thoroughfare to the city, and already two miles of first-class macadamized road have been constructed.

The Georgetown-Leesburg pike is one of the oldest roads in the United States. When the British threatened the national capital with fire in 1812 the archives and official documents of the youthful Republic were transported by ox-teams along this pike to safety. Along this route, too, many battles of the Civil War were fought, and Virginians still tell of the exploits of Mosby and his men, pointing out places where skirmishes occurred. On this road are to be found the ruins of the home of the man who, according to tradition, killed the first man who fell in the Civil War. The whole road is an evidence of the engineering skill of George Washington, for he is credited with having "laid it out" as a young surveyor.

The improvements now contemplated include a good road for motor traffic from the pike to Great Falls Park, where the ruins of many of George Washington's engineering projects are to be found. These include the old iron foundry and flour mill built by Washington, as well as the old canal and its locks, one of masonry fifty feet high and the other cut from solid rock.

WILLARD ANXIOUS TO RECLAIM HIS LOST LAURELS FROM DEMPSEY

(By International News Service)

LAWRENCE, Kan., July 5.—"Sure, I'm willing to meet Jack Dempsey again," said Jess Willard today, as he paused in his farm work on his broad acres near this city to talk to an International News Service representative in regard to another bout.

"I'm not only willing to meet Dempsey, but anxious to fight him," continued the giant of Pottawatomie, who two years ago lost the world's heavyweight championship when Dempsey toppled him at Toledo.

"I've led the simple life; I'm in splendid shape today," said Willard. "I would need four months for training and conditioning—then I will be ready for Jack Dempsey—just give me four months," he added.

HERO OF GREAT WAR GUEST OF PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Goldsmith of this city are two very happy people and the special cause is the arrival of their son, Lieut. Frederick Oliver Goldsmith, last Wednesday via the Santa Fe.

He expects to be with them until recalled to active service in the United States Navy. His last service was seen in the North sea, where he was in command of the U. S. S. John Collins, engaged in mine sweeping. Since he was relieved he has been in an eastern hospital, recuperating from injuries received in the hazardous work, and has now come to Southern California to complete his cure. He still wears the pallor of the hospital but is so far recovered that he is eager to get to sea again.

He carries as his most precious possession the navy cross bestowed upon him November 11, 1920, for distinguished service as a commanding officer engaged in mine sweeping.

SKIING TOURNAMENT IN NORTHWEST

(By International News Service)

SEATTLE, July 5.—Skiing in the Summer? It can't be done, says the sophisticated Easterner and Southerner. But Pacific Northwesters know better. They stage a ski tournament every Summer and have plenty of good white snow on which to pull off spectacular stunts that make the crowds "O!" and "Ah!" as the performers go sailing through the air, eighty to ninety-five feet.

Ski jumpers throughout the Northwest, Canada and even the Middle West are preparing to enter the fifth annual midsummer tournament at Paradise Valley, 5,557 feet above sea level, in Rainier National Park, on the slopes of Mount Rainier. The date of the tourney this Summer is July 3.

Men and women who took honors in meets held in previous seasons will enter the coming tournament, and, in addition, Canadian ski experts have announced their intention of competing in these events. Others from Norway and Sweden also are expected this Summer. The tournament is under the direction of the Northwest Ski Club.

Last year hundreds of persons went to Paradise Inn and from there viewed the ski jumping. Other crowds lined one side of the course, which was marked off on Alta Vista Knoll, near the inn. The tourney this season will be held over the same course.

Icy Snow Good for Landing.

The warm weather last year made the course sticky and the going rather heavy, so that no new records were set up. However, L. Larson, a sturdy son of Norway, who now lives at Aberdeen, Wash., leaped away with high honors by a jump of ninety-five feet. He also won the honorary prize for style and length of leaping and an extra prize of a silver trophy, which must be won two years in succession to become the property of the winner. This is one reason for the intense interest in the tournament this season. Larsen must win the cup again and

PENSIONS FOR PRESIDENTS

It has long been a popular pastime among certain kind-hearted souls to preach the need of pensions for ex-presidents. They are frequently pictured as broken-down, helpless old gentlemen, who have given their life's energy to their country and who, upon retirement from office, are cast upon the mercies of philanthropic neighbors. It is, therefore, exceedingly refreshing to read in a recent issue of Leslie's magazine an article by Mr. Richard Barry, in which he reviews the financial affairs of our ex-presidents since President Hayes. Mr. Barry finds that all of them have managed to keep a reasonable distance from the poorhouse, and two of them who entered the White House in debt found it an easy matter to meet all their creditors before leaving office.

According to Mr. Barry, President Hayes saved $44,000 a year while president. Evidently the chief executive's demands were much less than now and the cost of living in Washington decidedly cheaper. At any rate, the records show that Hayes managed to save $176,000 while in office, which, at 5 per cent interest, provides an annual income of $8800.

President Garfield was in office only five months before he died, but his successor, President Arthur, is believed to have saved $50,000 while in office. Grover Cleveland went to the White House a poor man, but he retired to private life with a comfortable estate, due largely to the wise investments of his savings. President Harrison is said to have spent only about one-half of his salary. Mr. McKinley went to the White House in debt, but during his five and one-half years there paid off all his debts and saved enough to provide adequately for Mrs. McKinley after his death. Colonel Roosevelt saved money while president and, though he received legacies from his father totaling nearly $200,000, he left an estate of one-half million dollars when he died. Mr. Taft was also in debt when he became president, but was able to save money for the future before the end of his term. Woodrow Wilson had practically nothing when he became president, but it is estimated that he saved about $50,000 a year while in office.

Thus does the agitation of the pension advocates seem rather unnecessary. Not only have the presidents of the last quarter century been able to save money out of their salaries to establish a comfortable nest egg, but they have not come out of office the helpless, broken-down men as some suggest. Until his death Colonel Roosevelt was making good money from his writings and lectures, to say nothing from his income from investments. Former President Taft has, since his retirement from the White House, made excellent money teaching law in an Eastern college, writing on political subjects for newspapers and lecturing over the country. Mr. Wilson, despite his physical breakdown, will always find anxious buyers for his writings, and Mr. Harding, when he retires, will find a job waiting him on the Marion Star.

It would indeed be a pity and a reflection upon the presidents themselves, as well as the American people, if it were necessary to provide pensions for ex-presidents. It would be a rather regrettable thing if a man were elected president who spent his salary so unwisely as to become a subject for charity a few years after his retirement. Through unwise investments an ex-president might lose his earnings, but that is a risk which every man incurs, and the fact that he was once president does not enter into it.

Peter was no different from other boys. Sometimes when his sister's friend would call he would entertain him in the drawing room until Dolly came downstairs. One night the young man asked the youngster if he ever peeked through the keyhole while he and the boy's sister were in the drawing room.

With a sudden burst of candor, Peter answered: "You bet, when mother isn't there."

Pianist Rachmaninoff told his New York flat the other day a story about his boyhood.

"When I was a very little fellow," he said, "I played at a reception at a Russian count's, and, for an urchin of seven, I flatter myself that I swung through Beethoven's 'Kreutzer Sonata' pretty successfully."

"The Kreutzer," you know, has in it several long and impressive rests. Well, in one of these rests the count's wife, a motherly old lady, leaned forward, patted me on the shoulder and said:

"Play us something you know, dear."

The diner had been struggling with an India rubber steak. "Look here, waiter," he finally said. "You'll have to bring me something else. I can't tackle this."

The waiter carefully examined the article, then he said firmly: "I can't take it back; you've bent it."

"Beg pardon, gov-nor," said the tramp—a particularly dirty and objectionable specimen—to a prosperous looking citizen. "Would you give half a dollar to improve and beautify your town?"

"What's the idea?" was the non-committal and suspicious response.

"Why, for two glittering quarters I'll move on to the next village," the objectionable one explained.

He got the money.

The Secret of Stradivarius

The other day in Berlin a notable company of musicians gathered at Beethoven Saal for an astonishing recital. The ghost of great Stradivarius, it was reported, had returned to earth and had disclosed the secret of the matchless violins of Cremona to a Thüringian doll maker, so that now this doll maker could take any factory-built fiddle or cello, for that matter—and give it, by some mysterious device, the great rapturous tone heretofore confined to the treasured instruments come down from the classical school of violin building. The musicians were greatly impressed, writes Dosch-Fleuret in the New York World.

The doll maker, Heinrich Oldhaber by name, refused to say what process he had used in giving the box its prodigious tone. Dead Stradivarius, he repeated, had come to him and disclosed the seventeenth century secret of violin building. The secret was now Heinrich Oldhaber's secret.

The writer found the doll maker at his desk in his Berlin apartment. Conspicuous on the desk was a large pot of varnish. Oldhaber would not say whether or not this pot of varnish had anything to do with his invention.

He is a man past middle age, who has spent his life at his doll manufacturing trade in the little town of Sonneberg, which lies at the southern edge of the old poetic forest of Thuringia. The town is given over to toy making and is near an important center of musical instrument manufacturing, the city of Markneukirchen, noted for its large output of cheap, factory-made violins. Oldhaber is also engaged in the import and export trade at Hamburg. He was disinclined to discuss the nature of his invention, but told the tale of his spirit visitation.

"My wife and I are occult," he said. "She especially, is what is called sensitive—a person with whom spirits find it possible to communicate—and for many years she has received messages from disembodied personalities. Away back in 1900 my wife came to me and said she had learned from the spirit world that an Italian would one day come to me and disclose an invention. I waited for years, but no such message came and I forgot about it all."

"One evening a few months ago my wife and I were sitting at home in Sonneberg when I asked her, as I often did, whether she had received any recent spirit communication. She said she was conscious of a group of spirits with whom she was in familiar rapport. Among them was a strange man. She described him as tall, slender and dark.

Later, she told me that this Italian had appeared to her alone. Finally he communicated with her. He told her merely that he was the spirit of an Italian who had lived long ago and was named Stradivarius. She had never heard of the name. I had heard of Stradivarius violins but did not know whether they were named after a man or a town.

"Then I found myself in communication with Stradivarius. I am not as sensitive as my wife, but I have had spirit experiences at times," so I was not surprised or alarmed in the presence of my ghostly caller. I was conscious of Stradivarius and at the same time an idea came into my head, a violin.

"I was entirely ignorant of violins and their making, and at first did not know how to go about putting my idea into use. But there was Markneukirchen not far away with its big violin factories. That was the place for me. I went to the Markneukirchen manufacturers and related my story. I told them that I could take their thousands of boxes and turn them into Strads and make their city the world's center of violin building. They laughed me out of their office. I bought a cheap box and took it home with me.

"I worked on it and developed my invention, out of the idea that Stradivarius had given me. When I was done I didn't know what I had accomplished. I am no violinist, and I could not test the tone of the instrument. I took it to a good violinist and asked him to play it.

"He looked at the shoddy box contemptuously. I told him I had put the notes of a Stradivarius into it. He laughed. But I argued with him so earnestly that he at last consented to draw the bow across the strings. When he began to play he did not stop for two hours."

After that Oldhaber had little difficulty in spreading the fame of his invention throughout musical Germany. The acutest interest is manifested among the expert makers of high-grade violins. They see the ruin of their trade if the doll maker is able to turn any box into a Strad. The fiddle manufacturers at Markneukirchen are distressed. They laughed so hard at Oldhaber that he has renounced all idea of aggrandizing their city and says that he will transfer his activities to Berlin.

STUDIO NEWS AND GOSSIP

Mary Miles Minter, young Realart star, receives a tremendous amount of "fan" mail, that is, letters from her admirers all over the world. It remained for an enterprising shopkeeper of Madras, however, to combine business with pleasure and enclose his catalogue of gift jewelry in his letter of appreciation of Miss Minter's screen art.

Not wishing to disappoint her wide-awake, business-getting correspondent Miss Minter decided to send for some of his proffered wares and laughingly told her mother and sister that she intended thus to simplify her Christmas shopping and secure them gifts that were guaranteed to be a complete surprise.

"But I'll let you select what you think sounds most interesting," conceded Miss Minter, handsomely, turning over to them the catalogue. "Pick out anything you like and then don't blame me if you are disappointed when it comes."

The catalogue offered more mysteries than the menu of an Armenian restaurant. Listed were such intriguing bargains as pedakams, bulaks and thoodods, all of which, the purchaser was assured, were set with precious stones, very handsome and becoming to any lady. Or, if the fair purchaser failed to find what she liked among these articles, there were also to be had some very fine jadabillas, kasimalias, addigals, kappoos or go-loosus.

"Go as far as you like, old dears," invited the little film star. "I really think this is an ideal way to shop, especially for gifts. If I don't alienate the affections of my immediate family this time, I may try the plan again with my friends. Everybody loves a surprise and is sure to get it with this method of long-distance shopping."

All Educated

Quite a number of ex-college folk interpret "The Snob," a William J. Neidig Saturday Evening Post campus young star in this Realart picture, is from the University of Washington; Richard Wayne, University of Nebraska; Allan Connor, University of Southern California, and Julia Faye, University of Illinois.

There are lots of little things—personal things—that theater-goers like to know about their favorite stars. How they spend their time, what their hobbies are, are they married or single, and—oh, lots of little things.

Taking a glimpse into the Jesse D. Hampton studios, where the new Pathe special, "When We Were Twenty-one," was being completed, we waded through the entire company, and here is what we found.

H. B. Warner, the star of the production, plays golf, drinks tea, reads de Maupassant and made his first appearance on the stage at the age of six.

Claire Anderson, his leading woman, loves comedy and thinks that Harold Lloyd is the funniest man on the screen. She drinks tea, also.

James W. Morrison, playing the important role of "The Imp," rides horseback, wants to play the saxophone and never wants to play Hamlet. He also drinks tea.

Frank Leigh is a cricket fiend, sports a monocle whenever the excuse is offered, and is fearfully addicted to the tea habit.

Christine Mayo, a "vampish" party, by the way, doesn't care much for gaudy jewelry, but is extremely fond of cream puffs and tea.

Claude Payton revels in defective roles and rises to a full height, six feet or more, and states that he NEVER drinks tea.

Of Interest to Musicians

The early part of June Galli-Curci ended her fifth season in America. It had been an unusually big season for her. Among the engagements that she fulfilled, twenty-three cities were represented that she had never appeared in before. She went as far West as Kansas, and also to the Gulf. She made fifteen appearances in New York during the season, and thirteen in Chicago.

D'Annunzio welcomed Eleanor Duse back to the stage when she made her first appearance at Turin in "Balbo" by a message and a wreath. She was enthusiastically recalled by the audience, and at the end of the performance her admirers removed the horses from her carriage and drew her back to the hotel. Later she was forced to appear on the balcony in answer to the persistent roar of cheers.

Another new organization for the betterment of music has been formed. It is the Catholic Guild of Organists, and its purpose is to stimulate interest in, and foster the growth of music in the Catholic church. The first annual dinner was held in Chicago at the beginning of the month, and there were over a hundred members present.

UNITED STATES AS A COMMERCIAL POWER

The five-year period ending at the close of 1919 was a notable one in emphasizing the wealth of the United States and consequently, the weight of its influence on world affairs, both commercial and political. Mere assertions may be considered as boasts unless supported by figures which prove the vast wealth of the United States. This richness, naturally, is in the manufactures of the country, which after all represent money and are expressed in dollars. The increase in the value of American manufactured articles is amazing, one statement alone, that the United States manufactures represent 40 per cent of the world's output, being sufficient to induce appreciable surprise. Added to this, the information that the value of the American factory products for 1919 of $62,500,000,000 approached very closely the world output of $65,000,000,000 in 1910 creates nothing less than astonishment. Surely it also stirs the American sense of pride.

Within five years the value of American manufactures had more than doubled by $14,000,000. They were more than five times what they were in 1899, only twenty years earlier. Some comparisons are interesting. Before the war the United States was producing 30 per cent of the world's goods. In 1909 America turned out goods valued at $20,000,000, while the United Kingdom and Germany together produced manufactures worth $18,000,000,000. Eliminating the United Kingdom, France and Germany in 1909, American products of that year equalled what the rest of the world put on the market. These figures will show the importance of the United States as a commercial power and will emphasize the necessity of fostering foreign trade, with particular attention given to exports, which represent the 20 per cent American surplus.

Leaders in the various manufactured lines will produce surprises. Listed in the order of their value, the twelve leading manufactured products are as follows: Iron and steel products; slaughtering and meat packing; wholesale; automobiles, parts, etc.; foundry and machine shop products; flour mill and grist mill products; lumber and timber products; all cotton goods, ship-building, steel; bread and bakery products, cars and repairs; by steam railway companies; clothing, women's; clothing, men's; iron and steel products, leading the list, were valued at $4,644,281,000, and men's clothing, the last of the twelve items mentioned, was worth $1,158,067,000.

Thus it is seen that, with the ability to produce such a vast amount of wealth in a single year, the American people occupy a pre-eminent position in the world of commerce. They cannot fail to view the future with assurance. It also is mandatory upon the producers of this great wealth that, in order to hold what they have gained in trade leadership, they must arrive at understandings that will encourage and maintain it.

REDUCED DEMAND LOWERS OIL PRICES

Western Oil Concerns Competing With Pennsylvania Crude Oil Companies

By SAMUEL ROSENTHAL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

OIL CITY, Pa., July 5.—Independent refiners, although admitting that prices paid for Pennsylvania crude and other grades produced in the East are way down, are themselves placed in a position where they are operating on a basis that affords a very narrow margin between a profit and a loss and are so loaded up with refined products for which there is no market that the conditions of less than six months ago, when the independents were constantly bidding up the price of crude until the Pennsylvania grade reached the top figure of 66.1, are to-day taking as little as possible. With Pennsylvania crude oil down to $2.50 a barrel—the lowest price in over five years—it is again being demonstrated that it is not price but demand that sells any product. And that demand, excepting in the case of gasoline, is conspicuous by its absence.

A well-known local refiner and jobber of crude and refined oils today pointed to the fact that refiners who but six months ago were bidding against each other in an effort to secure Pennsylvania crude are to-day loaded to the limit with refined products and going into a market where keen competition for prospective buyers has been forcing the prices down to dispose of stocks that have taxed storage facilities to the limit, in order to avoid being put in a position where they would have to stop buying crude and shut down.

"Every price cut by a jobber or refiner," stated the local man, "makes the situation more acute. A refiner may make a special price in order to move some given line with which he is overloaded. This is pie for the buyer, who, regardless of the conditions that have forced the seller to make the new low price, immediately stands pat on that price with all comers, and thus the lack of demand has been slowly but surely forcing down values for finished products.

"As a matter of fact," continued the local oil man, "the present cut in the price of crude had already been largely discounted by cuts in the price of the finished product the past few days."

Western Competition Hurts.

Although there are several refiners who are continuing to operate their plants, it was pointed out, the operations are not netting any profits, and some who do not want to sever connections with their sources of supply, in anticipation of a revival of business, are actually doing business at a loss.

The producer is the man who right now is getting the worst of it—especially those who bought production or drilled in new production the past two or three years.

The refiner, stated the International News Service's informant, excepting under extraordinary conditions, usually buys and sells at the market. The producer who drilled at the peak of the market prices and correspondingly high costs is faced, even if he is able to carry his load, with the possibility of having to wait a good many years before he can begin showing a profit on his wells.

As to where prices will eventually go, nobody seems willing to predict or guess. There is naturally the pessimism that comes with a cut, and some profess to see further drops in sight. Others, more optimistic, believe that even if there should be further cuts they will not be for any length of time, as the curtailment of operations and productions and the

CAT CAME BACK, IS NOW FAMOUS

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The cat came back. And he said Thomas came back in style.

He was only an alley cat a few months ago. Now he's famous. He's in the movies, and his name has taken up good space on the cables. This is how it all came about:

Pickings were lean in Detroit early in January, and Thomas—who was nameless then—climbed into a big crate on a foraging expedition. Just then there was a loud bang. Prepared for any emergency he crept deeper into his hiding place.

All was darkness, and there was much commotion, but Thomas was too afraid to move. After an indeterminate time all was still. Thomas looked around and found that he had been securely nailed in with an instruction book on how to manage an automobile. He was jailed in a crate protecting an automobile.

The weary weeks passed. He licked the grease around the edges of the crate. He ate the instruction book and some of the trimmings.

There was only a quiver of life when the big crate was opened in Sydney, Australia, and the automobile taken out. Curled up and almost lifeless, eyes glazed and coat rough and unkempt, the cat was found.

Only careful nursing restored Thomas. He was named in honor of the machine in which he had taken his mealless voyage of seven weeks, half across the world and over two oceans.

Thomas had become valuable. He became the pet and pride of the automobile company after whom he is named. He has been filmed and photographed, dined and fêted. Insurance of $5,000 was taken out and a passport secured for his return to America.

C. G. Pool and Mrs. Pool were named as guardians for the prince of cats, and Thomas will be taken for a tour de luxe of the East, winding up at his old home in Detroit.

LEVEES BREAK AND FLOOD TWO TOWNS

(By International News Service)

CALEXICO, July 5.—According to reports received here this afternoon the towns of Somerton, Arizona and San Luis Rey, Lower California, are under water following the breaking of the levees holding back the overflow of the Colorado River. No loss of life is reported but it was stated that property damage and loss might be considerable.

prospective revival of business are expected to cause a turn.

So far as the better grades of crude oil are concerned there has been no increase in the supply available, excepting in stocks on hand. Western crudes have been brought into the market in increased production, and gasoline from these grades, although not to be compared with the high grades refined from Pennsylvania oils, are laid down at Eastern points at a price that makes them formidable competitors with the Eastern grades.

Aside from the demand for gasoline there is but a limited sale for lubricants and other crude by-products at this time. Just what this means to the refiner, it is pointed out, is apparent when it is stated that for every barrel of gasoline refined from Pennsylvania crude there is a surplus of other products that must either go into storage or be sacrificed in price equivalent to about two barrels.

HONOR THE FLAG

The Glendale Daily Press struck a responsive chord in its offer of a beautiful bunting flag with each yearly subscription paid in advance. All we could procure at that time were speedily taken and many applied for the flags after the supply had been exhausted. To satisfy these demands we have ordered a new supply, and these will be given on the same terms as were the first. The Daily Press is not doing this as a money-making proposition, for the flags are quite costly and the paper is worth every cent asked for it, but we desire to do our bit toward stimulating patriotism and reverence for the flag. We hope to eventually see "Old Glory" displayed in every Glendale home, and we want to do our part toward bringing this about.

Fill out the coupon below and bring it or mail it to the office, accompanied with $5 for a year's advance subscription, and a flag will be laid away for you. If in arrears, pay to date and a year in advance to get the flag.

RHODES NEVER WOMAN HATER

But Celebrated "Empire Builder" Had Little Time to Devote to the Gentler Sex.

Cecil Rhodes had the reputation of being a woman hater, but he was by no means a misogynist, though he might have been regarded a misogynist. He was wedded, it was said, by his friends, to Africa. But his life would have been more complete and no less full of achievement if he had been married to the right woman—at least so says my wife and other women who knew him.

While I have said Rhodes was not a woman hater, he was averse to wasting his time on women of mediocre intellect. Rhodes excused himself for not marrying by saying that he had not the time to give a wife the attention she was entitled to receive.

In his magnificent house at Cape Town there was only one picture. It was a painting of a young woman, beautiful and modest of aspect, by Sir Joshua Reynolds, and hung in the dining room above the fireplace. He loved to look at it and frequently told how he had gained possession of it. As a boy he took a great fancy to this picture, which belonged to a relative, and his love for it increased as he grew to manhood. Eventually he bought it. He always wound up the story by saying: "Now I have my lady, and I am happy."—John Hays Hammond in Scribner's Magazine.

PAY HONOR TO GOD OF FIRE

Japanese Religious Observances That Take Place in Coldest Season of the Year.

A Japanese religious observance peculiar to the coldest season of the year is that of bathing in cold water and wearing to and from the bath a single kimono of pure white, with a white band about the head. The ceremony, says the Japan Advertiser in a recent issue, is out of respect to Fudo-san, the god of fire, primarily. Those observing the custom carry a lantern and jingle a small bell as they go along the street. The season continues for thirty days.

The first fifteen days of the season is called the daiken, or great cold, and the second fifteen days the shokon, or small cold. Most of those who go through the ceremony are young men, apprentices in some trade, who run to and from the bath, repeating the words, "Rokkon Shoko," as they go. The principal temple and bath is the one in Fukuyaga-ku. The cold water bath there was recently rebuilt at a cost of 300,000 yen in anticipation of the cold season. It is open for women only until 6 o'clock in the evening, but at all hours in the day for men. Among the women are many young actresses, who pray earnestly for success in their profession. Another Fudo shrine is near Meguro station.

Wealth in Beads.

Probably the choicest and most valuable beads in the world are those possessed by the natives of Borneo. In many cases they are very old, and have been kept for centuries in one family.

Some are thought to be of Venetian origin, while others resemble a Roman variety.

It is difficult to induce the natives to sell their beads, which they guard as heirlooms. A rich chief may possess old beads to the value of thousands of pounds.

When children are small they are carried on the backs of their mothers in a kind of cradle, which is often elaborately adorned with beads. One chief possesses a cradle valued at £200.

Practically Unbeatable.

"My wife," proudly said a citizen of the Ozarks, in the cross-roads store, "splits the kindling every morning of the world, packs in the stove wood, builds the fire, milks three cows, gets six kids ready for school, sews, mends and bakes, and then has the house all redjuped up before it comes time to put the dinner to cooking. And I'd just sorter like to know who can beat her."

"Well," returned a bystander, "as she's prob'ly tollable muscular and I hain't been right well myself since way long last spring, and she hain't my wife, no way, while mebbly I could beat her, I'm yur to say that I hain't got the slightest idy of trying it."—Country Gentleman.

Ancient Pictures.

Mankind has always loved pictures. Faces, without a written language, have left behind them rude carvings and murals to attest the fact. When an industry arose that appealed to this ancient appetite with pictures that moved, it did not have to wait long to see whether it would die or flourish. A dozen years ago the motion picture business, as we now know it, did not exist. Today the American public supports 18,500 moving picture theaters, makes 5,000,000,000 visits to them a year and spends $750,000,000 annually for the amusement.—The Nation's Business.

Spelling His Style.

"Don't you ever read Shakespeare?" "I used to," said the alert scenario writer.

"Yes?" "I'll have to acknowledge that bird is pretty good, but I found that reading his plays was making my style a little heavy, so I quit."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Blue Laws

Dear Editor: As there has been so much discussion of what is termed "Blue Laws" of late, I believe your readers would like to know what a blue law looks like.

As a matter of fact there is no such thing. The term is used indiscriminately by both criminals and others as applying to any law interfering with their interests.

The early settlers of the New England states brought with them a high sense of religious duty and held the idea of responsibility to God above everything else. Naturally there was embodied into their laws a regard for the Sabbath. Public sentiment upheld the strict enforcement of the fourth commandment, the same as all others.

Later, as religious thought changed and immigration affected the nation, those laws affecting Sunday, or the Lord's day, were modified, so that the strict observance was termed "blue laws."

In most of the Eastern states not affected by European immigration there are at this day laws making Sunday a day of rest. These laws are upheld by popular sentiment by all classes, especially by the great body of men and women who must work for a daily living. Organized labor has always favored any movement to "reduce the hours of labor."

In those states no individual or institution which depends upon the public for support would keep a place of business open on Sunday.

The observance of Sunday, or the Lord's day, is of vital importance to the church, for the church cannot compete with shows and other money-making institutions in reaching the people; hence the query, "Why favor the church closing the doors of places of amusement?"

There is one reason from a public standpoint. The church alone of all others teaches both young and old without cost the necessity of a life of virtue, honesty, soberness and a respect for law. These things make civilized government possible. In so far as we detract from or render the work of the church impossible we hasten a despotism or anarchy.

The history of the church has been a long one. It has gone through many difficulties and been often misrepresented, but will continue to live; giving hope and comfort to those who find in it the way of life, while pointing out to the world that the time will come when God will rule the world in righteousness, and whether the laws are blue, or white, or red, we shall have to accept them.

403 East Chestnut.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB DOING GOOD WORK

In a statement just issued by the newly elected President of the Automobile Club of Southern California, W. L. Valentine of Los Angeles, is included a message which shows that this organization within the past year has attained a national peak of service in America.

Auto owners of Southern California have combined, it is pointed out, to make motoring supreme as an outdoor pastime in this corner of the country. That it is the motorists themselves who have accomplished this is clearly shown in Mr. Valentine's statement.

Preparations have just been completed by the Auto Club for handling what is believed will be the greatest motoring rush ever before seen in the Southern counties during any summer, which is looked forward to for July, August and September.

It is also pointed out by the new president that the Auto Club has erected and is maintaining more than 70,000 enamel metal sign posts on the roads of this State, and on transcontinental highways leading into Southern California from eastern states.

Good news is also contained in the announcement that this system is to be materially increased during the next 12 months. Renovation work is now going on in every southern county of California.

Service departments of the organization which are to increase their scope of endeavor are the theft bureau, which has instituted a shotgun campaign against auto thieves; the touring bureau, which maintains branches in each county; the legal department, which protects the interest of all auto owners in the State; the drafting department which prepares maps, and all other service departments of the club.

Testimonies received from eastern visitors who have enjoyed the hospitality of Southern California auto owners, through their club organization, indicates that its work is receiving nation-wide attention and gratitude, and this word is transmitted to the thousands who are supporting its effort in the new president's recent bulletin.

Nine-tenths of India's three hundred million people live in villages, not in towns, and except in very minor ways Indian village life has not changed for two thousand years.

CLEVELAND HAS FEARLESS OFFICIAL

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND, July 5.—Edward C. Stanton—this is the man who got the evidence that got the people who solved Cleveland's baffling two-year-old murder mystery. For two years the slayers of Dan Kaber, wealthy Lakewood publisher, went scott free. Now his widow, her 19-year-old daughter, Marian McArdle, former Smith College girl and actress, and Marian's grandmother (his wife's mother) occupy cells under indictment for first degree murder.

Edward C. Stanton, young prosecuting attorney for Cuyahoga County, is making Cleveland unsafe for criminals.

Since entering upon his official career in January, 1921, Mr. Stanton's office has rapidly gained the reputation of being one of the "liveliest" places in town.

With a good list of achievements on his record already, the Kaber case, however, is by far the most strenuous test of ability that has fallen to the lot of any prosecutor in many a day.

The numerous details of the case, abounding in suggestions of medieval witchcraft—"evil spirits"—carved daggers and mysterious potions, with its overwhelmingly rapid developments have kept Prosecutor Stanton "on the job" night and day.

A good night's rest and regular meals mean nothing to Edward C. Stanton when following a clue.

Rather under medium height—slight figure, sandy-brown hair, blue-gray eyes that seem always to see the truth, a remarkable store of good humor, and a firm, determined jaw, giving evidence of his grit and "stick-to-it-iveness," there's a thumb-nail portrait of the prosecutor.

A "big man"—that's what they are saying about Stanton—and the people who voted for this "boy" last fall are predicting with just pride that he is going up—the sky's the limit.

One reason why modern laundries tear the buttons off is because they are sewed on in the modern way. The opal shows off its colors best when warm from contact with the finger.
